This role is largely remote, working from home and attending a bi-monthly online meeting, with occasional site visits/meetings.

Ideally they are looking for volunteers with an interest in planning system and environmental and countryside issues.

Applicants should be 18 or over and have the right to volunteer in the UK.

Training and ongoing support will be provided by team colleagues and online training sessions.

Who?

CPRE Nottinghamshire want a thriving, beautiful countryside, rich in nature and playing a crucial and beneficial role in our nation's response to the climate emergency. They are aiming for a countryside that is valued, enjoyed, and understood by and accessible to everyone, wherever they live, now and in the future.

Role Description

This is a flexible role that you can perform largely from home at a time convenient to you. Planning Volunteers have an essential role in responding to planning applications on behalf of their charity.

Requirements for this opportunity:

- ◆ Some knowledge of the countryside and environmental issues.
- ◆ Previous experience or knowledge in the planning sector or the planning system.
- ◆ An eye for detail, interest in investigative work and a willingness to visit the local planning office and proposed development sites.
- ◆ Access to computer and the internet at home and be comfortable using them.

Good to know

Do you live in the district of Ashfield and have 1-2 hours per week to be our "eyes and ears" on local planning news? This is a flexible role that will be convenient for you. Training and ongoing support will be provided by team colleagues and online training sessions. Out of pocket travel expenses will be paid back and their national organisation offers a regular 2hour online induction session for new volunteers.
